1940s and 1950s

Life in the 1940s and 1950s was a time of rebuilding after the war. Many homes were damaged and people felt sad, but everyone worked together to make things better. New inventions like washing machines and televisions began to appear, and families felt hopeful for the future.

Life in the 1960s and 1970s brought lots of change and freedom. People wore bright, bold fashion and spoke up for fairness. Children in the 1970s often played outside, riding bikes, climbing trees, and making their own fun. Life felt colourful, active, and full of new ideas.
